1 Scope and method

This study describes the general calendar printed in the 1962 typical edition of the Missale Romanum. It answers three different questions without confusing them: how that calendar acquired its form; which reforms materially changed it; and what celebrations the printed calendar actually contains. The tables therefore reproduce calendar data, not Mass propers or prayer texts.

1.1 The edition represented

The normative baseline is the typical edition promulgated under Saint John XXIII in 1962, read with the 1960 Codex rubricarum. The fixed calendar was collated against the calendar headed Calendarium in a digitized copy of that edition. The movable cycle was checked against its Proprium de tempore and the Code's rules for the liturgical year. Latin titles are documentary labels taken or normalized from those headings; this publication does not present them as newly made official English translations.

This is a calendar model, not a perpetual civil-date Ordo. The date of Easter, occurrence, transfer, local patronal feasts, a church's title and dedication, religious-family calendars, and later permissions can change what is celebrated in a particular place and year. The general tables must therefore be combined with the rubrics and a competent local Ordo.

1.2 What “complete” means here

The Temporale section gives every recurring movable observance and the rules that generate the Sundays and ferias. The Sanctorale tables give every dated celebration and every commemoration printed in the general calendar. A date absent from the fixed tables is not missing evidence: it has no universal fixed observance in the printed calendar, so its seasonal feria or an occurring local celebration governs.

The United States section is deliberately separate. A national calendar, diocesan calendars, and the Missal's collection pro aliquibus locis are not interchangeable. Only a nationwide item established by a national or edition-specific witness belongs in the national overlay; named diocesan entries are not silently promoted into it.

Evidence labels used in this study

Printed baseline	Data directly attested in the 1962 typical Missal or the 1960 Code.
Particular layer	Data attested for the United States or another competent particular calendar, kept distinct from the general calendar.
Later option	A permission enacted after 1962, such as Cum sanctissima ; it does not retroactively alter the printed baseline.
Unresolved lead	Material found only in a composite scan, index, modern Ordo, or secondary compilation and therefore excluded from a normative table until its authority and date are established.

2 How the calendar was constructed

2.1 Two interlocking cycles

The calendar embodied in the 1962 Missal is not a list devised at one moment. Its oldest structural layer is the weekly and annual cycle centered on Sunday and Pascha. Around that center grew the seasons of preparation and celebration, the anniversaries of martyrs and other saints, dedications, and feasts of the Lord and the Blessed Virgin Mary. In the mature Roman books these appear as two interlocking series: the Temporale, whose dates are generated chiefly from Christmas and Easter, and the Sanctorale, whose observances normally occupy fixed month-and-day dates. The proper calendars of places and religious institutes add a third, particular layer.

The collision of those layers required rules of precedence, occurrence, transfer, commemoration, and concurrence. A calendar entry consequently does not, by itself, settle every celebration in a given year. It supplies one candidate and its class; the rubrics decide the result. Thomas J. Talley’s historical synthesis is useful for the formation of the annual cycle, while the successive Roman liturgical books and decrees are the controlling witnesses for the calendar’s juridical form.

2.2 From curial use to a standardized printed book

Medieval Roman and local calendars varied. The printed books issued after the Council of Trent did not create the liturgical year, but they standardized a Roman curial inheritance on a wide scale. Pius V’s 1568 Breviary reform and 1570 Missal placed a revised general calendar within books intended for broad Latin-Church use, while preserving uses that met the conditions stated in the promulgating documents. Later popes added saints and feasts, revised ranks, and adjusted texts and rubrics. The general calendar therefore continued to accumulate material rather than remaining frozen in 1570.

By the beginning of the twentieth century, the frequency and rank of saints’ days could displace much of the older ferial psalter and seasonal cycle. Pius X’s reform, promulgated in Divino afflatu (1911) and implemented through new rubrics, reordered the psalter and precedence so that ferial and seasonal offices could recur. It was a structural recalibration, not merely the insertion or deletion of isolated names.

2.3 The immediate construction of the 1962 form

Pius XII’s mid-century reforms supplied the next decisive layer. The restored Holy Week order changed the center of the Paschal cycle; the general decree Cum hac nostra aetate and the rubrics effective in 1956 suppressed many vigils and octaves, simplified ranks, and reduced commemorations. These measures left the calendar visibly leaner before the 1960 codification.

John XXIII then promulgated the Codex rubricarum by Rubricarum instructum on 25 July 1960. The new code replaced the older hierarchy of doubles and simples with four classes, supplied integrated rules for the calendar, and was to govern the Roman Breviary and Missal from 1 January 1961. The 1962 typical Missal incorporated that system and its revised general calendar. Thus “the 1962 calendar” is best understood as the printed calendar of the 1962 typical edition operating inside the 1960 rubrical settlement, rather than as an independent reform issued in isolation in 1962.

Particular calendars were also to be brought into conformity with the new code. The Sacred Congregation of Rites’ 1961 instruction on revising particular calendars regulated which local celebrations could remain and how their rank was to be assigned. That process explains why a complete practical calendar cannot be reconstructed by copying the general calendar alone.

3 Timeline of substantive modifications

This timeline selects changes that altered the calendar’s architecture, precedence, or widely observed contents. It is not a list of every canonization or feast inserted between editions.

Date	Act or book	Substantive effect
1568	Pius V, Quod a nobis ; reformed Roman Breviary	Revised and standardized the calendar as embedded in the Roman Office, while defining the books and uses to which the reform applied.
1570	Pius V, Quo primum ; Missale Romanum	Published the corresponding Roman Missal and its annual Temporale–Sanctorale structure for broad use under the bull’s stated conditions.
1604 and 1634	Typical Missal editions under Clement VIII and Urban VIII	Revised the post-Tridentine Missal and continued the authoritative editorial development of its calendar and rubrics.

Date	Act or book	Substantive effect
1911–1913	Pius X, Divino afflatu ; new rubrics and calendar adjustments	Reordered the weekly psalter and precedence, curtailed the habitual displacement of ferial offices, and coordinated later calendar changes with the new system.
1951 and 1955	Experimental Easter Vigil and the decree Maxima redemptionis nostrae mysteria	Restored the rites of Holy Week to revised times and forms; the Sacred Triduum and Paschal Vigil again became a distinctive liturgical unit in practice.
1955–1956	Cum hac nostra aetate and the simplified rubrics	Suppressed most vigils and octaves, simplified ranks and commemorations, and substantially reduced the calendar before the final 1960 codification.
25 July 1960; ineffective 1 January 1961	John XXIII, Rubricarum instructum and Codex rubricarum	Established four classes, new precedence and occurrence rules, and a coordinated calendar for the Roman Breviary and Missal. This is the immediate normative system of the 1962 book.
1961	Sacred Congregation of Rites, instruction on particular calendars	Required diocesan and religious calendars to be revised under the new code, distinguishing the general calendar from properly local claims.
23 June 1962	Typical edition of the Missale Romanum	Published the Missal whose printed calendar and propers form this study’s edition baseline.
14 February 1969; effective 1 January 1970	Paul VI, Mysterii Paschalis , and the revised General Roman Calendar	Reconstructed the general calendar for the postconciliar Roman Rite under new universal norms. It is a successor calendar, not an update to be merged into the 1962 tables.
19 March 2020	Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Cum sanctissima	For celebrations according to the 1962 books, permitted defined optional celebrations of later-canonized saints and certain entries in the pro aliquibus locis supplement. It left the printed 1962 calendar intact and imposed protected-day limits.

The 1969–1970 reform is included to mark the historical boundary. Its nomenclature and options must not be projected backward: a postconciliar “optional memorial” is not the same thing as a 1962 commemoration, III-class feast, or later permission under Cum sanctissima.

4 How to read the 1962 calendar

4.1 Classes, ferias, and commemorations

The 1960 Code assigns liturgical days to class I, II, III, or IV. Class is a category inside a larger precedence system, not a score that can be compared without regard to the kind of day. The Code’s table of precedence, occurrence rules, and special seasonal rules decide which office and Mass prevail.

The tables use “Comm.” when the printed calendar gives only a commemoration. A commemoration is not a fifth class and not an independent feast. When a III-class feast has an additional commemoration, both are shown on the same row. The commemoration’s actual admission can still depend on the occurring day and the general rules.

4.2 Occurrence and transfer

When two observances claim the same day, the higher item in the table of precedence normally prevails. The defeated observance is transferred only where the Code so provides; otherwise it is commemorated or omitted according to the rules. A bare annual list that moves every collision to the next free date is therefore unreliable.

Sundays of class I, the Sacred Triduum, privileged ferias and vigils, octaves, and particular feasts all have special places in the precedence table. The complete decision procedure belongs to the companion study Assembling the Mass; this volume supplies the calendar inputs.

4.3 Civil date and liturgical day

The liturgical day generally runs from midnight to midnight. The Office’s rules of concurrence and Vespers are a related but distinct question. This study’s date tables identify the day and do not attempt to print a daily Office directory.

Three layers to consult for an actual day

1. Generate the Temporale from Easter and the weekday/date rules.
2. Add the universal fixed entry and any legitimately approved particular entry.
3. Apply precedence, occurrence, transfer, commemoration, and any applicable later permission; then check the competent Ordo.

5 Complete normative Temporale

The Temporale is generated rather than copied onto fixed civil dates. Let Easter Sunday be day zero. The offsets below locate every movable named observance; the seasonal rules that follow generate every remaining Sunday and feria.

Observance	Position	Class	Calendar note
First Sunday of Advent	fourth Sunday before Christmas	I	Begins the liturgical year.
Holy Name of Jesus	Sunday from Jan. 2 through Jan. 5; otherwise Jan. 2	II	Fixed by a Sunday/date rule.
Holy Family	first Sunday after Epiphany	II	Fixed by a Sunday rule.
Septuagesima Sunday	Easter −63 days	II	Begins Septuagesima season.
Sexagesima Sunday	Easter −56 days	II	—
Quinquagesima Sunday	Easter −49 days	II	—
Ash Wednesday	Easter −46 days	I	First weekday of Lent.
First through fourth Sundays of Lent	Easter −42, −35, −28, or −21 days	I	—
First Sunday of the Passion	Easter −14 days	I	Begins Passiontide.
Seven Sorrows of the Blessed Virgin Mary	Friday after Passion Sunday	comm.	Seasonal commemoration printed in the calendar.
Palm Sunday	Easter −7 days	I	Second Sunday of the Passion.
Holy Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday	Easter −6, −5, −4	I	Privileged ferias.
Sacred Triduum	Easter −3, −2, −1	I	Holy Thursday, Good Friday, Holy Saturday; highest privileged order.
Easter Sunday	Easter	I	With a privileged octave of class I.
Monday through Saturday in Easter octave	Easter +1 through +6	I	Octave days.

Observance	Position	Class	Calendar note
Low Sunday	Easter +7	I	Sunday in albis, octave day.
Second through fifth Sundays after Easter	Easter +14, +21, +28, or +35 days	II	—
Minor Litanies	Monday–Wednesday before Ascension	—	Classification follows the occurring day; the litany does not create a feast.
Office of the Blessed Virgin Mary on Saturday	an otherwise unimpeded Saturday of class IV	IV	A recurring office and Mass, with seasonal forms; not a class-IV feast.
Ascension of the Lord	Easter +39	I	Preceded by a class-II vigil.
Sunday after Ascension	Easter +42	II	—
Vigil of Pentecost	Easter +48	I	Privileged vigil.
Pentecost Sunday	Easter +49	I	With a privileged octave of class I.
Pentecost octave, including Ember Days	Easter +50 through +55	I	Octave days.
Trinity Sunday	Easter +56	I	First Sunday after Pentecost.
Corpus Christi	Easter +60	I	Thursday after Trinity Sunday.
Sacred Heart of Jesus	Easter +68	I	Friday after the second Sunday after Pentecost.
Sundays after Pentecost	weekly through the end of the year	II	The final is always the twenty-fourth Sunday after Pentecost.
Christ the King	last Sunday of October	I	Fixed by a Sunday/date rule.

5.1 Seasonal generation rules

Advent	Its four Sundays are class I. Ember Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday and the ferias from December 17 through 23 are class II; the other Advent ferias are class III. December 24 has its own class-I vigil in the fixed table.
Christmas cycle	Christmas has a privileged octave. December 26–31 are class-II octave days, with the saints or commemorations shown in the fixed table; January 1 is the class-I octave day. The Sunday within the octave is class II. Epiphany is class I; the Sundays after Epiphany are class II and ordinary weekday ferias class IV unless another rule supplies a rank.
Septuagesima	Its three Sundays are class II. Weekday ferias are class IV.
Lent and Passiontide	Sundays are class I. Ash Wednesday and Monday through Wednesday of Holy Week are class I. Ember Days are class II. Other Lenten ferias are class III and have the seasonal privileges assigned by the Code. The Sacred Triduum is governed by its own highest-order rules.
Easter cycle	Easter and its octave are class I. Low Sunday is class I; later Sundays through the Sunday after Ascension are class II. The weekday ferias outside the octave are class IV unless another rule intervenes. Ascension and Pentecost are class I; Pentecost has a class-I octave.
After Pentecost	Sundays are class II except the class-I feasts assigned to Sunday. Ordinary weekday ferias are class IV. September Ember Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday are class II.

On an otherwise unimpeded class-IV Saturday, the Office and Mass of the Blessed Virgin Mary on Saturday supply the recurring observance prescribed by General Rubrics nn. 78–79. Its seasonal forms do not turn it into a fourth class of feast.

When Easter is early or late, not all Sundays printed after Epiphany are used in their first position. The omitted post-Epiphany formularies are resumed between the twenty-third and the final Sunday after Pentecost as the Missal directs; the final Sunday remains the twenty-fourth. This device completes the Sunday cycle without pretending that every year has the same number of calendar weeks.

5.2 Fixed seasonal observances not to overlook

The Major Litany is observed on April 25, subject to its rubrics when Easter or another privileged day occurs. The Ember Days are the Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday after the third Sunday of Advent, after the first Sunday of Lent, in Pentecost week, and after September 14. These generating rules are part of the calendar even though the Ember Days do not appear as sanctoral feasts.

6 Complete fixed calendar: January–June

The following is the universal fixed calendar printed in the 1962 typical Missal. Blank civil dates have no universal fixed entry. “Comm.” means that the printed entry is a commemoration; a commemoration following a feast is shown after a semicolon. The leap-year displacement of Saints Matthias and Gabriel is stated after February.

In a leap year Saint Matthias is celebrated on February 25 and Saint Gabriel on February 28; the Roman bissextile reckoning repeats the sixth day before the Kalends of March. This is an edition rule, not an editorial transfer inferred from an empty date.

The class-I feast of Christ the King on the last Sunday of October is movable and therefore appears in the Temporal table rather than under an arbitrarily chosen October date.

8 United States national layer

8.1 What the surviving edition witness establishes

A Desclée appendix titled Proper Feasts Kept in the Dioceses of the United States of America, with a Tournai imprimatur dated 28 September 1961, distinguishes nationwide celebrations from feasts confined to named dioceses, provinces, or religious bodies. The six rows below are the entries for which that witness expressly says “in all dioceses of the United States.” They are the national layer attested by this edition-specific source; they are not reconstructed from a modern calendar.

Date	Proper celebration	Class	Witness locus
Feb. 5	Saint Philip of Jesus, Martyr	III	printed p. 18; PDF p. 56
Mar. 22	Saint Isidore the Farm-Laborer, Confessor	III	printed p. 25; PDF p. 63
Apr. 27	Saint Turibius of Mogrovejo, Bishop and Confessor	III	printed p. 31; PDF p. 69
July 24	Saint Francis Solano, Confessor	III	printed p. 55; PDF p. 93
Sept. 26	Saints Isaac Jogues, John de Brébeuf, and Companions, Martyrs	II	printed p. 64; PDF p. 102
Dec. 22	Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini, Virgin	II	printed p. 9; PDF p. 47

These celebrations are proper, not “optional memorials” in the terminology of the postconciliar calendar. Their actual treatment when they meet a universal celebration or a privileged feria is controlled by the 1960 precedence and occurrence rules. For example, the Desclée Cabrini page itself directs a commemoration of the Advent feria.

8.2 The Cabrini date boundary

The source just collated unambiguously prints Saint Frances Xavier Cabrini on December 22 as a nationwide class-II feast. A later calendar-change notice is reported to have moved the U.S. observance to November 13 in 1963. That notice has not been collated in an authoritative decree or dated national Ordo for this publication. Accordingly, December 22 is retained as the fact proven by the 1961 appendix; November 13 is recorded in the research audit as an unresolved later operational change, not inserted into the 1962 baseline by editorial guesswork.

8.3 What is not nationalized

The same appendix proves why an index or formulary collection cannot be treated as a national calendar. Its Our Lady of Guadalupe heading assigns December 12 only to the Archdioceses of San Francisco and Santa Fe and the Dioceses of Los Angeles, Sacramento, and Tucson; it assigns November 16 to the Province of New Orleans. Saint Peter Claver is headed “in many dioceses,” not all dioceses. Numerous other entries name one diocese, a group of dioceses, a province, or a religious institute. None of those limited claims belongs in the nationwide table above.

A separate composite American Missal scan contains a 1937 diocesan supplement and loose later inserts. It is useful for locating texts but not for proving a unitary 1962 national calendar. In particular, its pro aliquibus locis index proves that a formulary was present, not that every U.S. diocese was bound to celebrate it.

Using the U.S. layer

For a historical reconstruction, use the six attested nationwide rows with the universal tables and the dated Ordo for the diocese in question. For present celebration, consult the competent authority and current Ordo as well: this study neither determines authorization to use the 1962 books nor converts later pastoral practice into historical calendar evidence.

9 The optional layer created by Cum sanctissima

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith issued the decree Cum sanctissima on 22 February 2020, effective 19 March 2020. Its purpose was to permit the celebration of saints canonized after the 1960 cut-off within celebrations according to the 1962 books. The accompanying official note stresses that this is an optional mechanism: a celebrant may continue to follow the sanctoral exactly as printed in the older books. It is therefore an overlay, not a revised edition of the 1962 general calendar.

9.1 The eight operative rules

1. For a just cause, a missa festiva latiore sensu may be celebrated on class-III days other than the protected feasts in the decree's annex, and on a class-III vigil of a saint.
2. The Mass of any saint canonized after 26 July 1960 may be used on the date of that saint's universal liturgical memorial; a votive Mass may also be celebrated within the existing votive-Mass rubrics.
3. When that festal Mass is used, the complete corresponding Divine Office may be celebrated as an ordinary Office.
4. The omitted class-III feast or vigil is always commemorated, together with other occurring commemorations, subject to General Rubrics n. 111(d).
5. Formularies are selected in this order: the existing Proprium Sanctorum pro aliquibus locis; a new supplement approved by the Holy See; otherwise the appropriate Common. A formulary supplied by the Proper or Supplement is used on the date assigned there.
6. On class-III or class-IV days, an optional ordinary commemoration may instead be made of a saint or mystery listed for that date in the Proper or approved Supplement, again subject to n. 111(d).
7. In houses of institutes of consecrated life or societies of apostolic life, the house superior—not the individual celebrant—decides how the provisions are used for the conventual Mass or Office in common or choir.
8. The seventy class-III feasts in the annex may not be impeded or omitted through these options. They may themselves be celebrated on class-III ferias of Lent or Passiontide, with the feria commemorated.

The official note adds two especially important guardrails: class-I and class-II celebrations are unaffected, and the option is not a general power to invent a feast date or compose a proper. The decree works through the old rubrical categories and specified sources.

9.2 The seventy protected class-III feasts

This is the decree's complete annex. Titles below follow the Holy See's published English version; the Latin fixed tables above remain the edition baseline.

Month	Protected dates and feasts
January	17, St. Anthony, Abbot; 20, Ss. Fabian and Sebastian; 21, St. Agnes; 24, St. Timothy; 25, Conversion of St. Paul; 26, St. Polycarp; 27, St. John Chrysostom; 29, St. Francis de Sales; 31, St. John Bosco.
February	1, St. Ignatius; 5, St. Agatha; 6, St. Titus.
March	6, Ss. Perpetua and Felicity; 7, St. Thomas Aquinas; 9, St. Frances of Rome; 12, St. Gregory I; 21, St. Benedict; 24, St. Gabriel the Archangel.
April	11, St. Leo I; 14, St. Justin; 30, St. Catherine of Siena.
May	2, St. Athanasius; 4, St. Monica; 5, St. Pius V; 9, St. Gregory of Nazianzus; 25, St. Gregory VII; 26, St. Philip Neri.
June	5, St. Boniface; 11, St. Barnabas; 13, St. Anthony of Padua; 14, St. Basil the Great; 21, St. Aloysius Gonzaga; 30, Commemoration of St. Paul.
July	7, Ss. Cyril and Methodius; 14, St. Bonaventure; 19, St. Vincent de Paul; 22, St. Mary Magdalene; 29, St. Martha; 31, St. Ignatius.
August	2, St. Alphonsus Liguori; 4, St. Dominic; 5, Dedication of St. Mary of the Snows; 8, St. John Vianney; 12, St. Clare; 20, St. Bernard; 28, St. Augustine; 29, Beheading of St. John the Baptist.
September	3, St. Pius X; 12, Most Holy Name of Mary; 16, Ss. Cornelius and Cyprian; 27, Ss. Cosmas and Damian; 30, St. Jerome.

Month	Protected dates and feasts
October	2, Holy Guardian Angels; 3, St. Thérèse of the Child Jesus; 4, St. Francis; 6, St. Bruno; 14, St. Callistus I; 15, St. Teresa.
November	4, St. Charles; 11, St. Martin; 14, St. Josaphat; 18, Dedication of the Basilicas of Ss. Peter and Paul; 22, St. Cecilia; 23, St. Clement I; 24, St. John of the Cross.
December	3, St. Francis Xavier; 6, St. Nicholas; 7, St. Ambrose; 11, St. Damasus I; 13, St. Lucy.

The annex contains exactly seventy entries. Protection here is protection against displacement by the decree’s new options; it does not elevate the feasts to class II or override the ordinary precedence rules for unrelated occurrences.

10 Use boundaries and verification checklist

10.1 Historical description is not present authorization

This study reports the contents and operation of liturgical books and later documents. It does not decide who may celebrate according to those books today, in which church, under which superior, or with which pastoral conditions. Those questions require the currently governing universal and particular law and the competent authority.

10.2 Before producing a dated Ordo

1. Identify the civil year and compute Easter; generate the complete Temporale.
2. Verify the edition, country, diocese, church title and dedication, patron, and any religious institute calendar.
3. Use a dated, authorized particular calendar or Ordo. Do not infer nationwide force from a formulary, index, hand-missal appendix, or present-day website.
4. Apply the 1960 table of precedence and the rules of occurrence, transfer, and commemoration. Check leap-year and resumed-Sunday rules.
5. If invoking Cum sanctissima, record which of its two options is used, the saint’s qualifying date, the source of the formulary, and the protected-day check.
6. Preserve unresolved date changes as unresolved until an authoritative decree or dated Ordo is collated.

10.3 Known limits of this edition

The universal tables have been transcribed from and checked against the 1962 typical Missal. The U.S. national table is complete for the explicit “all dioceses” claims in the 1961 Desclée appendix examined here. It is not a claim that no other nationwide decree ever operated during the broader 1960s. In particular, the reported 1963 Cabrini transfer still requires direct collation. Diocesan variations are intentionally excluded rather than guessed.
